Becky: Hi, Kenta! My friends and I are going to the snow festival next week. Do you want to join us?

Kenta: Yes, Becky. Thank you! But, what's the snow festival?

Becky: It's held at Green Park every January during winter vacation. We can enjoy sports like snowboarding, or making animals or buildings with snow.

Kenta: That sounds fun! In my town in Japan, we have a festival like that, too. My friends and I make a snow house every year. We call it kamakura in Japanese.

Becky: Ka-ma-ku-ra? That's interesting! I want to make kamakura at the festival. Is it difficult?

Kenta: No, but we need one or two days to make kamakura.

Becky: That's OK. Let's make kamakura. I'll tell my friends about it.

Kenta: Good. So can we start making kamakura in the morning on Thursday? And we will finish that before lunch the next day and have lunch with everyone in it.

Becky: That's a great idea! OK, Kenta, let's meet at the park at eight.

Kenta: All right. Oh, Becky, can we enjoy skiing after lunch?

Becky: Sure! Let's do it! Well, Kenta, see you.

Kenta: Bye, Becky.
